VOL. 1, NO. 1

OFFICE OF MISSOURI GOVERNOR JAY NIXON

FALL 2010

Thank you for being part of the team

Every year, I have the opportunity to call upon a diverse and talented group of Missouri women and men to serve their fellow citizens as members of state boards and commissions.

They come from all parts of our great state, and represent all walks of life.

As members of this select group, your strong leadership and dedicated public service allow state government to function more efficiently and more effectively. Your contributions will have a significant and lasting impact on the lives of thousands of your fellow citizens.

It is my hope that this quarterly newsletter will help you get acquainted with your peers, keep you up to date on important state issues and initiatives, and encourage creative problem-solving around common concerns.

Thank you for generously sharing your time and talents in service to our state – and welcome to the team!

Boards and Commissions staff

Deborah L. Price, acting director

Deborah also serves as the Governor's liaison to the Department of Insurance, Financial Institutions and Professional Registration and as the Governor's designee to the Missouri Workforce Investment Board. She previously served as liaison to the Department of Health and Senior Services.

From 2004 to 2009 Deborah worked as an assistant attorney general prosecuting civil and criminal consumer fraud cases in the Missouri Attorney General's Office. She also served as an adjunct assistant professor at Saint Louis University School of Law. She earned her law degree in 2004 from St. Louis University and a B.A. in history from Washington University in St. Louis.

Deborah is a member of the Women Lawyers Association of Greater St. Louis.

Damion Trasada, deputy director

Damion previously worked in the Department of Social Services managing the Community Service Block Grant unit. He also had served as DSS legislative liaison during the 2009 session.

Damion also serves on the Jefferson City Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service Committee.

Before moving to Missouri, Damion co-founded a mentoring program in Philadelphia that prepares students for post-secondary education. He earned his bachelor's degree at Temple University and his master's degree in public policy at Pepperdine University.

Kim Gerlt, assistant

Before joining the Governor's Office, Kim was an investigator for the Attorney General's Office, handling civil and criminal consumer fraud cases.

From 2006 to 2010 she contracted to serve as liaison for the State Rehabilitation Council for the Blind.

Kim earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice administration from Columbia College in 2004.

Confirmations must be made within first month of session

Most recess appointments must be confirmed by the Missouri Senate when the legislative session convenes on Jan. 5, 2011. If your appointment requires Senate confirmation, you must attend a confirmation hearing within 30 days of the start of session to continue serving. Your state senator must sponsor you at this hearing.

The B&C staff will contact you in January 2011 about your hearing date and details on a reception to be held on the morning of your hearing.

Member spotlight: MHDC member brings diversity

TROY NASH has been a member of the Missouri Housing Development Commission since his appointment by Gov. Nixon in 2009.

While growing up in Kansas City, his family instilled the importance of hard work, personal achievement and service to others.

Troy brings a unique blend of legal, economic development and public service experience to MHDC. He has served in the U.S. Air Force as well as in a variety of private and public sector capacities.

As a city councilman in Kansas City, he served as chair of the Planning, Zoning and Economic Development Committee, which was instrumental in managing the development portfolio that revitalized the downtown area.

Troy also has distinguished himself as board chairman for People to People International. His work with People to People has allowed him to lead and participate in professional delegations to many nations.

Better future for Missourians

Troy sees the work of the commission as a way to help people make a better future for themselves and their families. He says one of the most satisfying aspects of serving on MHDC is having the ability to implement programs and initiatives that directly touch people.

One aspect of serving as a commission member that Troy was not aware of before joining was the amount of effort required of MHDC’s support staff.

“The professionalism and dedication of the staff is second to none,” he says. Troy appreciates the selflessness and hard work of all the staff members. He enjoys working with the staff to accomplish MHDC’s mission of providing quality, safe and affordable housing for low- and moderate-income Missourians.

Although the economy has challenged the commission in unprecedented ways, Troy remains upbeat about the commission’s work.

“MHDC is responding to the current challenges in the housing market, and will continue to find innovative ways to help homebuyers and improve the quality of life for Missouri’s citizens.”

Please join us in thanking Troy for his continued service to the people of Missouri.

Spread the word

Gov. Nixon is always looking for qualified, energetic applicants to serve on Missouri’s 200-plus boards and commissions. We would appreciate it if you would encourage your colleagues and friends to review the vacancies and complete an application found at governor.mo.gov/boards.

Agency Spotlight: Children's Trust Fund

YOU PROBABLY know them best by the familiar license plate that is Missouri's most popular specialty plate. But there's a lot more to the Children's Trust Fund, which for the past 27 years has been educating the public and awarding grants, all in the name of preventing child abuse and neglect in Missouri.

The CTF staff, led by its 21-member board of directors, was established by the legislature in 1983 to prevent child abuse and neglect through grant distribution, education and public awareness.

No state funding

The agency receives no general revenue. Funding comes from fees on marriage licenses and vital records, sales of the CTF license plate, voluntary contributions designated on state income tax returns, other donations and interest income from the fund.

Education, prevention programs

The board invests nearly $3 million a year in public education campaigns and prevention programs, including grants for:

- Safe cribs and infant nurturing
- Parent education and mentoring
- Caregiver support
- Home visitation
- Crisis intervention, respite care
- Staff training, development
- School- and community-based education

The board annually awards more than 100 of these grants to community-based organizations, which reach well over 80,000 people each year.

“Research shows that every dollar invested in these prevention programs can save $7 to $18 in future expenses related to child abuse and neglect,” says Executive Director Kirk Schreiber.

SPOTLIGHT

Safe kids: CTF promotes an environment where children can thrive and grow.

Public education, awareness

You may have heard CTF’s public education messages, including radio ads and billboards, on the prevention of shaken baby syndrome, safe sleep environments, positive parenting, emotional child abuse and neglect, and the dangers of leaving children unattended in and around vehicles.

CTF is the first Children’s Trust Fund nationally to engage in social networking by using podcasts and Twitter. It has more than 1,500 followers on Facebook.

Getting results

Measuring specific outcomes including satisfaction of services received is an important requirement of CTF grants. Overall, families enrolled in prevention programs report high levels of satisfaction. Data show a significant reduction in family risk and parent stress among participating parents.
